ENAISSANUE

When we walked on campus this year something was different ... We used to eat in a dimly lit cafeteria, now we enjoy our low fat vogurt in a new atmosphere. We used to roller blade around the lake to stay in shape. Now we tone up our bodies in the new weight room. We used to watch MTV and ESPN in our lobbies, now we have cable tv in our rooms. There's a new feel-a new look ... A Renaissance.

A sight not seen everyday - Eric LaFrance breezes through the Student Center on his skateboard

The new titness center was a huge hit with both old and new students alike. Found in the old game room, the fitness center allows students easy access to work out.

Sharing College Life

Throughout life you learn and grow by experiencing many things along the way. You learn more about yourself and about others each and everyday. Learning how to make yourself be heard as well as listening to what others have to say. Learning to be yourself and not what others want you to be. And having the ability to differentiate between what is important in life and what doesn't really matter at all are just a few lessons that we learn.

These lessons are learned in many activities that you do. From hanging out with friends on the weekend to taking notes in business class. And what better time and place is there to experience these growing tools than during the best years of your life here at Florida Southern College.

IFE AROUND

Florida Southern offered many activities for students to take advantage of. Most students were involved in one thing or another, usually scrambling to organize their time. Warren Adams commented, "With all my classes, Greek stuff, clubs, and social activities, it's hard to find time to sleep." Between athletics, clubs, community service, jobs, rehearsals and studies, students often kept extremely busy.

Athletics kept many students on their toes with rigorous practices; however, they weren't the only ones busy with practice. Members of the fine arts department put in long hours of rehearsals getting ready for concerts and plays. Karli Ross remarked, "Between band and my private lessons, I have to put in a lot of hours of practice on my oboe."

Community involvement also played a major role in students' lives. Many students were very generous with their time when it came to serving the community. Whether it was a few minutes giving blood or weekends spent helping needy children, students were often found lending a hand.

Students must often deal with inclement weather. Holly Fetters makes the most of it as she dances in the rain.

Some students devote their free time to community service. Brian Cone takes some time out of his busy schedule to donate blood at the blood drive.

ACTIVITIES

pus, students found the hardest thing to find time for was studying. Amy Madden stated, "The best place to study for me is whenever I'm doing laundry. It's really quiet and I get a lot accomplished."

Nancy Reeb said, "It's important to keep priorities straight. It's great to be involved on campus, but you have to remember where your priorities lie." For the most part, students kept that in mind while enjoying everything campus life had to offer.

Often students use their free time to run errands. Dane Mooney and Tammy Causey leave student personnel after taking care of some student government business.

EXPOSURE

It was a week filled with fun and activities as freshmen and transfer students moved in and got acquainted with F.S.C. and each other. Miss Mollys, Mr. Mocs, and resident advisors were there to help students get settled in and adjusted to college life. Students enjoyed the opening day picnic in Branscomb Plaza followed by the assembly in the auditorium. O-Week was anything but routine as students mixed and mingled at the Tacky Tourist Dance, the S.O.C. Hop, and the President's Open House.

An addition to O-Week was the play Risque' Business which addressed issues such as date rape, drunken driving, eating disorders, and other traumas that can affect students' lives. Jill Kalinowski, a resident advisor, believed Risque' Business was an asset to O-Week. "Risque' Business was new this year and I think it should be incorporated into O-Week every year. It is about reality and what students have to deal with in every day life." Tracee Notestine remarked, "It showed a lot of things that could happen to you. It was really good." Playfair, the meet and greet activity held in the Student Center was a huge success. McDonald stated, "They kept you moving from group to group allowing you to meet lots of different people. It was an interesting and unique way to meet people." Miss Mollys and Mr. Mocs did a lot with their O-Teams, Miss Molly, Ricci Honer stated, "I think student really benefitted from the Molly/Moc groups because it gave them a chance to get to know more people."

Overall, O-Week was a hit among students. Matt Valentine commented "It was a lot of fun, and I met a lot of people."

OOMS TO GO

DECOR DILEMMA

Many individuals liked to express themselves in various ways. Often their different lifestyles were expressed through their dorm rooms. Open houses offered the best opportunities to visit friends, as well as to see various rooms and the way students preferred to decorate them. An array of colors, designs, and memorabilia could be seen in each dorm room.

Many roommates enjoyed coordinating their rooms, and embellishing them with the latest styles and colors. Alison Rose and Heather Dodson decorated their room using yellow and blue sunflowers. The sunflower pattern adorned their matching bedspreads and blankets, as well as the curtains and the border along the window. Alison and Heather both agree, "We are not only roomies but best friends. We love sunflowers and we were really excited about how well our room turned out."

Other students chose to finish their living quarters with articles and posters from the past. Melinda Johnston displayed a lava lamp as well as Making their room their own, Lorie Owens and Valerie Herrero build a cabinet for extra storage space.

This room shows that students can have diversity-and in this case, also neatness.

DORM ROOMS

John Lennon, the Beatles, Jim Morrison, and Woodstock paraphernalia. Melinda believed, "The sixties were a unique time period where people took dreams and did their best to make them a reality. I decorated my room this way because it is a unique way for me to express myself. It is a totally different way of living."

Some rooms were considered a definite disaster area due to a build up of excessive laundry, books, and other articles on the floor, Chris Swink agreed that his room "was a definitely a constant fire hazard."

Decorating rooms isn't the only important thing about living away from home. Sandy Schnorr and Jen Rubin display the importance of getting along with your roommate.

VV HAT'S HOT

AND WHAT'S NOT

There were things to do that were cool and those things that were not. Being away from home, doing laundry was definitely not. Regan Krech stated, "The worst part about not going home for weeks at a time is that I have to do laundry. It's not so much doing laundry, just walking back and forth to the citrus building is a pain. That and throwing in two dollars worth of quarters to do a load." On the flip side of being away from home, students love to get mail. They often anxiously awaited each day to check their box.

Karen Griner replied, "I love it when there is a note in my box that says I have a package. My parents always send me little care packages."

When it came to music, it seemed all forms were hot; from Green Day to Garth Brooks and from Ace of Bass to Offspring. Some students attended the Green Day concert at the Florida Expo Hall in Tampa. Other students attended the Festival of Fine Arts shows. Karli Ross replied, "I enjoy a really good program plus it helps for my music theory grade."

Studying was low on the hotness

One of the grim realities of living away from home for the first time is laundry. Jennifer Straub sorts through her colors and remembers mom at home.

Country music has finally hit the mainstream. Jacob Bast and Katrina Bennett choose carefully before making their purchase.

Mail is sure to brighten any student's day. Sharla Morgan smiles as she finds mail in her box.

scale. It seemed there was no time for studying with all the activities on and off campus; however, the majority of the students knew that was the reason they were there in the first place. Krech commented, "I swore to myself that I would not stay up until one in the morning studying this year. Too bad that is the only time I can."

In conclusion, there were a variety of things that students could agree on that were hot and that were not.

Three hour chemistry labs are definitely not hot. Patty Fleig and Leif Lange work together to get the job done.

WHAT TO DO

After a stressful week of studying, students could use a break to escape from the overload of college classes and activities. For many students, the weekend usually began on Thursday night. There was a variety of selections to choose from on how to spend a quality weekend. Some students chose to go out of town visiting family or friends. Varying from weekend to weekend, a lot of students decided to stay on campus for different reasons. There were often special events and functions to attend. Many stayed on campus to catch up on homework and sleep, or just to spend time with their friends.

Often, students opted to check out the bigger cities nearby, such as Orlando or Tampa, to experience an exciting night on the town. For a "little fun in the sun," students enjoyed visiting and hanging out at the numerous Florida beaches. Clearwater was the most popular beach. Being only an hour away enabled people to relax and engage in some volleyball or some serious tanning.

When it came time to decide what

Florida's amusement parks are always a popular place to visit. Kristina Hankel and Andy Moorehead enjoy a day at Universal Studios.

The Disney theme parks always offer a day of fun. Denise Huffman, Melinda Johnston, Sandy Schnorr, and Jen Rubin take in the sights at EPCOT.

STURE OF THE STURE

tudents enjoy a late night snack it Dunkin Donuts.

FREE TIME

to do for the evening, clubs were most often the choice. Some of the top spots to hit were Pleasure Island, Kau-Kau Korner, The Edge, and the Texan. Veronica Gonzalez commented, "An individual's true colors and personality are revealed when they go out at night to a club."

On the other hand, students preferred a relaxing night in the dorm watching movies or just hanging out together. Becky Loden said, "After a long week of classes, it feels great just to sit back and relax." Many people intend to relax, but often the late night munchies hit, and they made runs to Dunkin' Donuts or Taco Bell.

Whatever the choice might have been, students were always finding ways to spice up their social lives at F.S.C.

E SAID SHE SAID

RELATIONSHIPS

Dating - a subject that one would definitely think there would be a major difference in opinions between guys and girls. Surprisingly, many students were all looking for the same thing in a relationship and a mate. When asked what she would look for in a mate, Jeni Mohler replied, "A best friend, trust, a sexy smile, a sense of humor, and a heart of gold." A certain male, who wished to remain nameless, described what love meant to him. "It means being able to trust someone completely and giving your all only to them."

On some questions, the answers were unanimous. Personality won out over the importance of looks. Mike Carr stated, "Looks diminish. Personality is what lasts." Mohler asked the question, "What happens when the looks wear off?" Being in love also proved more important than being in lust. Mary Beeson remarked, "I would rather be in love. Love will stand the tests of time and only grows stronger. Lust is fleeting."

Mike Carr and Mary Beeson agree that the personality, trust, and love are the most important aspects in a relationship. They have tound all that in each other.

Andrew Taylor describes love as being able to feel totally comfortable around someone- physically and emotionally.

Rob Magnuson looks for spontaneity and humor in a mate. He has found that and more in Kelley Lindley.

OPINIONS

Dating wasn't the only subject that students had strong opinions about. Most agreed that if they could be someone else, they wouldn't. Mohler commented, "I would be myself. Everyone has good and bad points. I've already gotten use to mine, so why change?" Andrew Taylor's reply was short and to the point. "I'd be myself. I'm cool."

Overall, the perceived differences between guys' and girls' thinking might not be so different after all.

Jeni Mohler doesn't always have to be out on a date. Here she enjoys a night out with the girls at Chuck E. Cheese.

MOCS FIRED UP

Florida Southern College's first spirit week began with Spirit Day. Students and faculty were encouraged to wear red and white. A tailgate dinner was held before the pep rally to promote spirit for the volleyball and basketball games. Friday night was the big night of the street dance between Student Personnel and Dell Hall. From 9 p. m. until midnight popcorn, cotton candy, and MOCtails were served amid the fun and excitement. lennifer Coit. leadership director of Student Union Board, stated that she was pleased with the amount of participation at the street dance and felt it was a great success. Saturday morning began early with the campus service project which was a tree planting on the lawn in front of the pool area. Many commuters also showed up to help clean the lobby of Princeton Hall. Walls were painted, tile was laid, and windows cleaned to make this a "Pit Stop" for commuters. Sunday morning closed spirit week with a chapel service. The main goal of spirit week was to make students proud to be Mocs. This goal was successfully reached.

FOUNDERS WEEK

A Celebration of Unity and Diversity

Florida Southern tied in its celebration of Founders Week with Black History Month. The week and the month started off with a bang as F.S.C.'s sister Methodist college, Bethune-Cookman College, brought their choir to perform for the first convocation of the year. After a wonderful performance, F.S.C.'s choir joined them on stage to sing the Battle Hymn of the Republic.

Living Sacrifice from First Christian Church of Wilton Manors performed for the Housemothers in celebration of Founders Week at the Sunday service.

The International Students Association sponsored "Tastes From Around The Globe" in the cafeteria by offering sample appetizers from various countries and cultures.

Founders Week '95 Convocation speaker, Joseph E. Lowery, brought the listening student body to new levels of enthusiasm.

Lowery encouraged the students to treat each other equally and reminded them of the importance of sticking together, regardless of race or nationality.

Joseph E. Lowery is a national leader who began campaigns in the 1950's against the Ku Klux Klan and police brutality. He fought for increased employment, job training, and economic opportunity for both blacks and other ethnic groups. He currently is the president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which he co-founded with Martin Luther King, Jr. Lowery is the meaning of the word "dedicated." He organized and led the 27,000 mile pilgrimage which resulted in meaningful extensions and strengthening for the Voting Rights Bill. A native of Alabama, Joseph E. Lowery studied at Knoxville College, Payne College, and Wayne University.

F.S.C. students, faculty, staff, and community members were all inspired by Mr. Lowery's encouraging Founders Day Address.

Florida Southern honored J. Lanier Upshaw as the 61st Honorary Chancellor during the Founders Week convocation Upshaw received a degree in business from Florida Southern College in 1936. In 1941, he founded the Lanier Upshaw, Inc. Insurance Agency. His aunt proceeded to hold the business together while he served in the U.S. Navy for four years. After returning to Lakeland, he led the agency to successful growth until he retired in 1976. He was named a Trustee Emeritus at F.S.C. after twenty-seven years of active service as a trustee.

Agnes Johnson Rowe was honored to give the first award in her name to a fellow sister of Alpha Chi Omega, Elisa Bedell.

Preparing for A Brighter Future

One of the things that make Florida Southern so special is the excellent faculty and staff. No matter what department a student spends their time in, there is always a professor available to lend a helping hand. The low studentto-teacher ratio makes it possible for every student to develop a personal relationship with the professors. Students at Florida Southern learn early that their professor is someone they can depend on for advice and guidance. We must study hard to achieve the goals we have established. Thanks to the dedication of our professors and hours of our hard studying, we leave Florida Southern ready, willing, and excited to take on the world.

Management

On December 2, 1994, Dr. Thomas R. Reuschling was inaugurated as Florida Southern College's sixteenth president. This ceremony marked his publicly taking office. A buffet brunch for the faculty, staff, delegates and trustees was held that morning followed by a tree planting ceremony. Words of welcome and greeting to Dr. Reuschling in the inauguration came from Mr. Ralph Fletcher, the mayor of Lakeland; Miss Wendy Parker, president of the Student Government Association; Dr. Joan Buccino, Tanner Professor of Economics; and others. During his inaugural address, Dr. Reuschling stressed the importance of students at Florida Southern and keeping the good things about FSC. Afterward, everyone who attended was invited to a reception and the Christmas Gala was held in his honor that night. Dr. Reuschling and his wife Dotty moved to Lakeland from Laurinburg, North Carolina where he was president of St. Andrew's Presbyterian College.

At Work

Florida Southern faculty members recognized for their status and contribution to the college have the honor of being named to an endowed chair. Endowed chairs are established by friends of the college who make significant donations to FSC. The chairs are then named in the donors' honor or in memory of another person. The recipients of the endowed chairs are appointed by the President by the recommendation of the Dean. The appointments and recommendations are based upon status and faculty members' contributions to the college. Dr. George T. Crutchfield and Dr. Joan G. Buccino are the newest members of this esteemed group of faculty. Dr. Buccino received an appointment to the Dorotha C. Tanner Chair in Ethics in Business & Economics. Preparing for the Job Market

The air is charged with excitement. Florida Southern seniors are tense. Like a devouring lion, the job market awaits.

When asked what essentials are needed in order to prepare for job interviews, these are some of the responses from seniors:

"Start early and research the company," said Bernadette Green. Tracey Brock said to "develop a well-organized resume." Scott Thuman suggested that one should "know the trends of the market, research biographies of successful people in that field, and read current trade magazines." Whatever field our seniors choose, they should feel well-prepared. The liberal arts education students gain at Florida Southern enables them to have a necessary competitive edge. Employers often look for our graduates because they know we produce hard-working quality employees.

Inquiring Minds

HANDS ON

Want To Know

There is more preparing at Florida Southern than just being attentive in class. In order to satisfy our inquiring minds we spend many hours in the library, working on computers, and researching information about particular subjects. There is much to be learned outside of the classroom.

Most of the learning that stays with us comes from hands-on experience. That is why we are made to attend all those rigorous hours of Spanish Lab and all those monotonous hours in the Biology Lab. But we'll never forget that "yo" really means "I", and frogs are interesting if you get to know them on the inside.

Learning by doing. There is a lot to be done in order to keep up with all the changing technology. Our educated and inquiring minds will always be yearning for more information and more hands-on experience.

STAFF WITH STYLE

True Colors

From sporting events to canoe trips, from Orientation Week to Founder's Week, faculty and administrative staff can be seen in all facets of campus life. The unique Moc pride that Florida Southern instills in its students carries through to the faculty and staff. It's a wonderful feeling when students realize they can learn from their professors outside of class as well as in the classroom. Many faculty and staff members could be seen eating lunch in the newly renovated cafeteria or cheering on the Mocassin sport teams. Both faculty and staff members, as well as students, enjoyed interacting with each other outside of class.

As many students confess, one-half of the knowledge learned during their college years came from real-life situations happening outside of the classroom.

Information

Superhighway

Computer skills and proficiency are the skills of the 90's. And the 2000's 2010's 2020's Elementary school children are using computers on a daily basis now, when we weren't allowed to use calculators. In our elementary education days, "Computers" was just a class we went to once a week. And a "mouse" was a fuzzy rodent that made all the girls scream.

In order to compete in a world of computer technology, we will have to do more than just know how to work our Sega. From Broadcasting degrees to Citrus degrees and from Science degrees to Elementary Ed degrees, we will all use computers in our careers. It is fascinating to realize that someday soon we will be grocery shopping by computer, and using electronic mail as our postal service.

Computer skills and proficiency are definitely the skills of tomorrow.

Differences

From the comedy of "A Funny Thing Happened On the Way to the Forum" to Henry Ibsen's "Ghosts," the Florida Southern College theatre department took great pride in providing entertainment for students, faculty, and staff of the college as well as the community of Lakeland and the surrounding areas. The Vagabonds presented four main stage productions this year. The dramatic honorary Alpha Psi Omega provided leadership and professionalism within the department. The theatre department supports one major with two different concentrations. Performance majors took courses such as advanced scene study and directing while technical theatre majors studied courses such as drafting for the stage and advanced scene design. Ms. Mary T. Whether it was piano lessons or advanced theory the music department offered many courses for students to take to enrich their lives with music. Band and choral performed several times for the Festival of Fine Arts series. Student recitals were a frequent occurrence. Music majors found themselves with a heavy schedule loaded with courses such as theory, music literature, recitals, music lessons, and performance classes. Not only music majors participated in these courses. Non-music majors also took lessons and participated in ensembles.

The music department again hosted the annual Christmas Galas. The Galas were a chance to showcase the many opportunities offered in the music department. Also, the department hosted the Child of the Sun Jazz Festival at the end of March. The music department prided itself on giving the sutdents of Florida Southern a chance to embellish their lives with the joy of music.

The Jazz Band includes Paul Bernicchi, Brad Burns, Kip Cline, John Dobbin, Missie Ellis, Dean Frankiln, Cole Fredericks, Meredith Horey, Allen Kee, Eric Kraus, Michael Kreusch, Gary Larsen, Robert Morris, Bob Rigney, Bill Sharp, Nicolo Taormina, and Brad Toms.

The Symphony Band performs at its November concert. The Symphony Band also traveled to North Carolina to perform at the Music Educators National Conference.

The Writing Is

PENS CENTRAL

On The Wall

New this year at Florida Southern was a writing lab dubbed Pens Central. The purpose of Pens Central was to encourage students to develop their own English skills for the classroom and writing in general. The student tutors did a variety of activities which helped students become more confident about handling writing on their own. They also helped the students focus on the correct ways of writing clearly and concisely. The tutors worked with professors to establish specific guidelines and limits that the professors found acceptable. Also, the tutors proofread the students papers, made suggestions so that the students could express their ideas in credible, effective language, and identified persistent errors in grammar and spelling. Pens Central worked hard to ensure that students' skills would improve as a result of their services. Mrs. Margaret O'Mahony supervised the Pens Central writing lab.

Imagination.

Although the art classrooms on campus seem hidden, the talent obviously is not. Florida Southern students proudly displayed their talent.

The Festival of Fine Arts celebrated its thirtyfifth anniversary season this year. The Festival included the musical classic "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum" presented by the Vagabonds. This was a hit with the students as well as season ticket holders. Other features this year included the Vienna Choir Boys and the Child of the Sun Jazz Festival.

Both professional and student art is displayed in the Melvin Gallery on campus. This year, the work of such artists as Lew Wilson, Dennis Paul Williams, Jimmy Earnst, Ruth Krantz, and Ruth Andress Stone were displayed in the gallery. Each exhibit opened with a Meet-the-Artist reception.

Some Impressions

Never Fade

Special events at Florida Southern this year ranged from the filming of SeaQuest to the Presidential inauguration, and from the Christmas Gala to a workshop on how to manage stress. A new special event was created in the freshmen residence halls this year. Each month the Resident Advisors held a self-improvement workshop. These workshops ranged from informational meetings about Greek life to seminars about different cultures. Sometimes guest speakers would come to the section meetings. These workshops allowed the freshmen and their Resident Advisors to grow closer and trust each other. This was also a way of ensuring that the freshmen were growing socially and academically.

Other events that were big on campus this year were the Founder's Week events, the filming of SeaQuest, the Spirit Week Street Party and the Miss Greek pageant.

Recruiting The Best

For Florida Southern

The purpose of the admissions office at Florida Southern was to find students who had academic credentials that predicted success at Florida Southern and were looking for an excellent small liberal arts college, and to enroll them at Florida Southern. The admissions office recruited these students by hosting college night programs and advertising in national publications. By sending out informative pamphlets and brochures on every aspect of life at FSC, the admissions office marketed the college to many prospective students. By hosting the seventh annual "Honors Weekend", the admissions office gave incoming students the chance to get ahead on their college credit through free CLEP general exams. The students stayed in residence halls with current students to get a taste of student life. The admissions office also arranged for other prospective students to tour the campus and stay in the dorms if they desired.

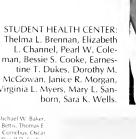

The newest admissions counselor, Gary Hartfield, takes a break from one of his daily tasks, Mr. Hartfield was hired to recruit students in more areas of the country.

Going the Extra Mile

Remember in elementary school? Remember gym class when two kids were chosen as the captains and they had to choose who would be on their team? Praying for your name to be called and smiling at the captains, hoping that one of them would pick you ...

And pick you soon before you are the last one standing there.

Remember your first year of college? Remember trying out for the team? It was a lot different than just saying a little prayer and smiling at the coach wasn't it? You had to give it all you had. You had to prove that you were able to do it. And here at FSC that's exactly what we do. Our athletes prove to give it all they have and then some.

REACHING

The Florida Southern Strikin' Mocs are starting off the year fresh with fourteen freshmen. The team is built with many young, recognized players. The leading trio of freshmen - Chris Crawshaw, Cesar Wilen and Jason McConnell - have together made an outstanding mark on the field. All three have been accredited for their accomplishments with sports and also within the classroom. Another trio, including Crawshaw and Wilen, have made themselves known. Crawshaw, Wilen, and Billy James have played together on the Florida State Select team and the Lakeland Lazers Club Team. These achievements have proven them to be a definite asset to the team. Coach Kris Pahl has had to adapt to a whole new set of players. Only three of the seven returning players were starters last year. Brian Harper, sophomore, and Dominic Stross.

joined by new runners Leif Lange, Tim Vanderhoff, David Paveiki, Allen Kee, Jeff Strickland, Joy

Hitting their stride in midseason the cross country teams performed well at the meet held at the University of Tampa, Jennifer Poole placed second and Kathy Rusher placed fourth. The girls' team received a second place trophy, and the boys' team received a third place trophy.

Greek organizations at FSC offer students an opportunity to become involved on campus. Greeks partake in various activities and sponsor many events for their national philanthropies. Some annual fundraising events hosted by these various organizations are Mr. and Miss Greek, Big Man on Campus, Watermelon Bust, Derby Days, the Dating Game, and a Bridal Show. Greek life, which consists of over half the student body, promotes leadership skills, responsibility, academics, and friendships. Greeks also hold important community service projects for local charities. Some of the highlights of Greek life are Rush, Bid Day, Formals and socials, sweethearts, rituals, traditions, and, of course, brotherhood and sisterhood.

Pi Kappa Alpha is about being the best you can be, whether it is in the classroom, or on the playing field. Since its establishment in 1868 at the University of Virginia, Pi Kappa Alpha has expanded to offer high ideals to college men at over 200 colleges and universities nationwide. Among these ideals are the academic achievement, athleticism, leadership, and the ability to relate well to others. The brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha, better known as the Pikes, bring enthusiasm to all that they do. Above all though, Pi Kappa Alpha is about brotherhood, and close friendships that will last a life through.

Pi Kappa Phi was established at Florida Southern on October 16, 1948. The first chapter of Pi Kappa Phi was founded at the College of Charleston, South Carolina on December 10, 1904. Pi Kappa Phi is the only fraternity that has created and supported its own national outreach project-PUSH America. The project's objective is to help handicapped children. The colors of Pi Kappa Phi are gold, white, and blue. The symbols of Pi Kappa Phi are the star, the lamb, and the bell. Pi Kappa Phi also realizes that "a house, a grip, a badge, a song, an emblem-does not make a fraternity. It is the unseen things- friendship, brotherhood, character, honor courage, ideals- that make the fraternity and the man." This is what Pi Kappa Phi instills in its fraternity.

GREEKS

IN GREEK WEEK

Greek unity was emphasized during Greek Week as games and contests promised friendly competition between the fraternities and the sororities. Fraternities were paired up with sororities, and together the teams participated in a week filled with events beginning with Greek Rock and ending with the Greek games.

There were some events that continued throughout the week such as the Penny Wars and Gotcha. The Penny Wars raised money by getting the teams to collect as many pennies as they could. Dustin Seaton says, "What can I say, it was too easy having Matt Johnson and PJ Zguzenski as my two targets."

Gotcha was a game of find and catch as hunters tried to scope out their targets, and the targets attempted to stay out of sight. "I enjoyed playing the gotcha game because many of us got involved and that made it a lot of fun," stated len Pinckney.

There were other events such as the pool relays and the scavenger hunt, but the week ended with a bang with the Greek games.

Liz Kirschner and Coda Odinera race to the finish line in the tricycle relay.

Craig Pinder leads his team by performing reggae songs in the Greek Rock show.

Dusty Seaton puts his all into helping his team bring their opponents down in the infamous Tug Of War.

GREEKS

Wild and crazy relays and events took place ending with the tug of war. R. J. Wallace remarked, "Greek games went off extremely well and everything seemed to run smoothly. I was pleased to see the enthusiasm displayed by all the Greek organizations."

Overall, Greek Week proved to be a success as all involved had a great time and enjoyed the Greek unity. "I appreciated Greek Week because it really united us with Alpha Omicron Pi. The brothers of Lambda Chi Alpha got to know the sisters better and we had a lot of fun," stated Andy Moorehead.

The Needle in the Haystack was just one of the events in Greek games. Rahim Jones and Tracy Monek dig deep for their items.

Stepping Out & Having Fun

Clubs and organizations add a lot of spirit and individuality to the Florida Southern College community. Ranging from departmental clubs to social clubs, students are provided with opportunities to express themselves through a wide array of activities. These activities take students outside of the traditional classroom to learn hands-on what life is really all about. The activities one can to choose from include: Bible study, acting, singing, playing instruments, sports, and many others. With over fifty clubs and organizations to choose from, FSC students are encouraged to get out and make new friends, take chances, compete, and most of all have fun.

Making A Difference

The STUDENT UNION BOARD is a student-governed organization which plans, implements, and promotes recreational, cultural, educational, and social events for the entire campus community. RES-IDENT ADVISORS are the people you live with twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week. They are the people to turn to when you have a problem or if you just need to talk. They are great friends and help you form fond memories that will be with you throughout your entire life. MISS MOLLYS AND MR. MOCS are your introduction to Orientation Week at Florida Southern. They help you get acquainted with the school, and give you someone to talk to those first few days away from home. They are also someone to turn to with questions as the year goes on. THE ASSOCIATION OF WOMEN STUDENTS is a group of Florida Southern women students. They sponsor the Miss Florida Southern pageant which sends a representative from FSC to compete in the Miss Florida pageant which leads eventually to the Miss America pageant. The STU-DENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION represents the student body in matters involving college administration, and faculty. SOUTHERN AMBAS-SADORS are often times your first experience with FSC, it is for that reason that being an Ambassador is so important. Ambassadors give tours of the school, they represent FSC at different functions throughout the year, and they play a major roll in public relations for Florida Southern.

"Natural" Science In All Forms

BETA BETA BETA is a group which seeks to encourage scholarly attainment in biology by reserving its active membership for those who achieve superior academic records and who indicate special aptitude for, and major interest in the life sciences. STUDENT AFFILIATES OF THE AMERICAN CHEMICAL SOCIETY is a group of students who wish to promote a fuller understanding of chemistry, and both its scientific and social responsibilities. STU-DENTS FOR THE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF SPACE wishes to educate students and the general public about the benefits of space exploration and development. The SOCIETY OF PHYSICS STUDENTS is the only physics society explicitly designed for students. Membership, through collegiate chapters, is open to anyone interested in physics. It is essentially a self-governing Society to serve the interests of physics undergraduate and graduate students. The CITRUS CLUB is a group that provides students with a mutually cooperative medium for contributing to the Citrus Institute and the College community as a whole. The Citrus Club also serves as a means to introduce students to their contemporaries who share similar career goals and aspirations. The NATURAL HIGH TEAM is one of FSC's newer groups. Their primary goal is to help students and faculty alike find constructive ways to spend their free time. They promote study breaks, eating healthy, exercise, and good ways to get rid of stress. The Natural High Team, along with the help of other groups on campus sponsor many workshops, and projects throughout the vear.

Diversity is what we're all about

The INTERNATIONAL STUDENT ASSOCIA-TION was formed as a way for FSC's foreign students to meet and interact with one another. It is also a way for everyone to come together and learn about the different cultures and traditions of different countries. The GIRL'S SOCCER CLUB is one of the club sports we offer here at Florida Southern. They go out, practice, and compete against other schools, and hope to become a varsity sport here at FSC. The COMMUTER STU-DENT ORGANIZATION was established in the Fall of 1991 as a way for commuter students to get to know each other and become more involved on campus. The INTERFRATERNAL COUNCIL is a group of men who are representatives for their respective fraternities. It helps build greek unity, and is also a way for the groups to come together to discuss different topic which may arise. WHO'S WHO is a group of students who are picked each year. They show outstanding merit, and great leadership both academically and through extra curricular activities. THE SOUTHERN is Florida Southern's newspaper. It is produced bi-weekly, and it is a great way to spread information around campus, and to keep informed about students, faculty, and administration.

Making Memories

Maybe he was the guy who asked you out to the movies your freshman year. Maybe she was the girl who sat next to you in that class that was such a bore and the only thing that you found interesting was her. No matter who it was chances are that you're not going to forget them even if he wasn't your dream date or if she ended up dating your best friend.

Years from now, you are going to look back on the next forty-four pages and remember faces that you thought were erased from your mind completely. So as you turn the pages, keep in mind all of the old roommates, old professors, old classmates and old crushes who have made your college experience a memorable one.

Final Countdown How many more days?

Just three more months ... Only three more weeks ... Three more days ...

College graduation- it's just around the corner. You've made great friends, participated in clubs and organizations, experienced most of the trials and tribulations of the typical college student. You've written papers, pulled your share of all-nighters, suffered through cafeteria meals day after day, served time in the infirmary. By the time your senior year rolls around, it's likely you've been struck with that common affliction known as SENIOR-ITIS! The symptoms are clearcrossing out the days on the calendar, beginning sentences with, "This is the last time I'll ever ... ", occasionally getting misty-eyed while looking at your classroom buildings or your dorm room. The class of 1995 at FSC experienced several changes since arriving in Fall 1991. They have witnessed the end of a president's era and welcomed a new one. They have experienced campus changes such as the cafeteria remodeling and the refurnishing of the student center. The senior class also had a special opportunity to use their class project-a fitness room in the student center.

Senior Molly Vogt enjoys the new fitness center that the senior class donated as their project. The fitness center proved to be an enormously popular endeavor.

You've written dozens of papers, pulled your share of all-nighters, suffered through cafeteria meals, day after day, served your time in the infirmary, stayed up until 3 a. m. for no reason ...

The Next Step decisions, decisions

What happens to seniors once they walk across the stage and receive their diplomas? Although having a diploma does increase your career options and earning potential, many careers are launched by determination and hard work. The "mailroom" is not always the fastest or easiest way to get a foot in the door, but many graduates do discover that they have to accept lower-paying jobs and make sacrifices in order to work their way up. In today's job market, many graduates are shocked to find that, even with a degree, the competition for jobs is fierce. The four-year college degree does not carry the same cachet it once did. Although another year in school may seem like punishment, graduate school is another option. This usually involves searching once again for that perfect school, arranging funds, and taking more tests such as the GRE and the LSAT.

Nicola Fox visits the Price Waterhouse Company on a school-sponsored field trip. These workshops help students gain a better understanding of what actually goes on in the work place.

The Job Hunt Landing that first job

Getting career-minded is a major focus of seniors. To help master the skills needed to land that first job, many seniors attended the seminars and workshops sponsored by the Career Placement Office. These seminars and workshops dealt with such important issues as resume-writing, interviewing, and business etiquette. The Career Placement Office also had a resume book on hand to allow prospective businesses to browse through. Many businesses also held open interviews on campus. These were advertised in advance in a flyer sent out by the Career Placement Office. Students also had the chance to meet with prospective employers at FSC's annual job fair. This was an opportune time for underclassmen to start thinking about their future careers. since the job fair was open to all FSC students.

Nate Guteras uses the resources available in the Office of Career Counseling and Placement. Many students find the extensive range of materials helpful in their job searches.

Interning The "real world"-almost

Finally, the career you've been working toward is within your reach. You're meeting people in your field and getting a taste of what your job will be like. It's a "test drive" of sorts- you're experiencing the day to day aspects of the job, having an experienced professional to guide you and help you with the unexpected challenges you face. Most students who intern feel a little overwhelmed and intimidated at first, especially in fast-paced fields with real deadline pressures. It is no longer just yourself you are working for- it is the company that you are representing. Any mistakes you make are "learning experiences!" things you will remember not to do! While interning is not required for all majors, most seniors who do intern find it beneficial. They describe it as "challenging" and "eye-opening". Some seniors felt that it was "very demanding-especially when you realize you're not getting paid for it." Most agreed, however, that the payoff was with the experience that they gained working with professionals in the field and learning the tricks of the trade.

Jennifer Mollison demonstrates measurement skills to first graders as part of her interning experience. Most-education majors choose to intern at a Polk County school during their las semester.

Moving On

Look Out Wall St. Here We Come!

"Goodbye, FSC, hello, real world! "This sentiment reflects the thoughts of many FSC seniors. As they look for new jobs, many of them also have to find new homes and new friends. The friends that they have made at FSC, the familiar faces that they have seen every day, the teachers that know their names- all of these people will no longer be greeting them on a regular basis. The challenges facing graduates are more than just professional. The new graduates have to adjust to really living on their own-paying rent and other bills, managing to balance a career and a family, and dealing with other pressures. Moving away from FSC often means moving away from the state of Florida. For some, this means making the sacrifice of living in a colder climate. For others, it is a chance to explore the world and a chance to experience a totally different environment. For seniors, the world awaits!

A group of FSC business majors takes a field trip to Orlando for a career workshop. These workshops are designed to give the students a closer loo at the fields that they pursue.

A Year Full of Major Decisions

ven though Junior year could not be considered a highlight in one's college career, there's no doubt of its significance. What exactly makes Junior year so special? Andy McNamera shed some light on the subject. "For me, personally, Junior year is the toughest year because I'm in classes that are geared towards my major. I also have to start applying to graduate schools." Angela Nohl could relate. "Before, I just kinda went with the flow. I knew I would have to grow up sometime, I just didn't think it would happen this fast!" As for Jen Harner, she wasn't going to let her Junior year get her all ruffled. "I'm just going to take this year in stride and worry about next year later!"

With a serious look on his face, Leif Lange prepares a test tube for his chemistry class. Kristin Gourley and Cara Boughton smile knowing that they are one year closer to graduation.

Freshmen at Heart

Transfers Receive First Taste of 'Southern' Life

Not all members of the Junior class were able to experience their Freshman and Sophomore years on campus- at least not at Florida Southern. Transfer students attending Florida Southern for their first time this year received the royal Freshmen treatment. "As a transfer, the transition was not that hard," described Dave Bostick. "The staff and other students made it easy. The classes here are more challenging and the professors have higher expectations, but that's to be expected." Marilyn Tillis stated, "Community college was like high school-you went to class and came home. But, now that I live at school, everything's different. There are so many distractions that staying focused is more of a challenge."

Marilyn Tillis expresses her sentiment as another long, hard week draws to a close.

Mornings

Time to Rise and Shine

t's 7:00 Monday morning, and your alarm clock is blaring some long forgotten song by Roy Orbison. Only one option seems appealing: to throw your alarm clock across the room and pull the covers over your head. Yeah right — Dream on!! Everybody had to face a new day- some more readily than others. Believe it or not, class was not a key motivator in why students finally arose from their slumber. Misti Winemiller's explanation was a bit unusual. "My chicken alarm clock wakes me up by saying 'Hey, baby, wake up and dance with me!" Still, others had their own reasons. Tammy Causey explained why she was such a morning person. "I get to see my boyfriend during the day!" Gee, Dane, you're quite a lucky guy!

Along with maintaining a decent GPA, and becoming involved in extracurricular activities, sometimes you just had to break away from it all. Imagine having an extra day and nothing to do. How would you spend it? Usually students answered they would spend it sleeping or catching up on homework. However, a few students had other ideas. "I'd love to go travel to exotic places," said Jamie Ebling, "providing that I also had an unlimited amount of cash going with me!" Martha Diaz decided she wouldn't spend it on herself. "I'd go out and help others any way I could." Matthew Valentine wasn't quite as charitable. "I'd play some some tennis, but my main goal would be to just kick back, and take it easy."

Reality Check

he spirited Class of 97 has been overwhelmed as they have had to face various responsibilities, challenges, and situations while making new adjustments in their second year of college. The sophomore class is composed of determined individuals who experience harder classes and become further involved on campus. The sophomores have begun to establish themselves on campus. Sophomores tend to take their classes more seriously now than when they were freshmen. This is where sophomores come to the realization that classes are not just fun and games, but must take precedence over other activities. Sophomores have begun setting numerous goals and aspirations for their future here at FSC and beyond.

Midterm Mania - Sophomore Alan Melgarejo studies in his dorm room for upcoming mid-terms. Mid-terms tend to be the climactic moment of stress for college students.

Match Made in Heaven -Jen Straub and R. J. Wallace make a very cute couple as they take a break from college to enjoy each other's company.

Majorly Confused

hoosing a major is an important yet difficult decision a college student must make. There are many options to choose from, and students must decide which major will best satisfy them. After completing a majority of the core requirement classes, many sophomores enter their second year of college either uncertain on a particular major, or take an alternative and pursue a different field of study by changing majors. After completing their freshmen year, sophomores have had exposure to various fields and career options, and therefore may decide that their original choice was not the most suitable one for them. This results in them changing their major. Some sophomores, however, know what they would like to pursue, and begin to enter their major courses and become more involved in their department during their sophomore year.

Getting Involved

fter experiencing their first year of college, sophomores tend to get more involved in campus organizations. Between the many clubs, intramurals, sororities and fraternities on campus there is sure to be something for everyone. By being a part of any organization here at Florida Southern College students get the chance to meet new people, experience different interests, and build on their sense of importance and find out what they are really interested in. Sophomores find that the more they become a part of the life here on campus the more they are preparing for the future. The class of '97 is leaving their mark and having a great time doing it!

A Fresh Start

As a new year started, a new freshmen class entered Florida Southern with anticipation.

s September second neared this year, anticipation rose among the incoming freshman class. The excitement of leaving home and starting over was very promising, along with the opportunity to make new friends.

After a long summer, the freshman class was introduced to FSC at O-week. This is definitely one of the most memorable weeks in each FSC student's mind. Not only were the students able to become familiar with the school and their classmates, but also got the pre-class jitters out of their systems by asking O-week leaders about their concerns. Freshman David Pavelski said, "At O-week, I met a lot of wonderful people who are now my best friends."

New Responsibility

The freshmen had to adjust to FSC by learning to handle more work and responsibility.

n September eighth, the first day of classes at FSC, the freshman class learned one thing for sure- they were no longer in high school. Many changes were apparent in their new education, from a different grading scale to harder classes. Most of the freshmen found the differences between high school and college classes to be very large. With less graded papers and more responsibility, it took some time for freshmen to adjust. When asked the largest difference between high school and college classes, Danny Koury replied, "You have to be responsible for your own work. In high school teachers pushed you to do your work. Here, it's all up to you."

Free At Last

An overwhelming amount of freedom was bestowed on the freshmen as their lives changed.

s any student will tell you, one of the largest changes each freshman experiences is their newly-found freedom. Without any parental restraints, freshmen find themselves making all of their own decisions. It is very easy to get carried away with the fun and excitement at college, and some freshmen took their freedom to an extreme. Freshman Scott Streaker said, "I was really caught up in my freedom at college. I always put my schoolwork second to nightlife."

Although the freedom can be overwhelming, by the time mid-terms rolled around the freshmen seemed to have a better grasp on it. Sometimes the only thing that can bring a freshman back to reality is a bad grade.

Above: Stephanie Lance shows off her room during one of its better moments. Finding time to clean is a common problem among students.

Forever Friends

The freshman class formed many strong and everlasting friendships among one another.

t FSC, the freshmen learned more than what was taught in their core classes. They were all very quick to learn that the dorm was their new home and their new friends were now their family.

"I knew that I was going to meet new people when I came to college, but I had no idea how much I would come to depend on my new friends," stated Kelly Pickens.

Along with the many other adjustments the freshmen had to make, they had to get used to the new level of friendship which they found. They came to friends when home sick or with any problems they had. Through the year, the freshmen learned that at FSC, your friends will always be there for you.

Cheap Thrills

As the freshmen budgeted their funds, they learned "a penny saved is a penny earned."

oing away to college means giving up employment for many students. If lucky, some students can transfer or take a leave of absence. Many students have to quit their jobs, which means no weekly paycheck. So how do students budget the little money they can spend?

"I take muffins from the cafe and keep them in my room, so that way I save money on buying snacks," says freshman Jessie Gagne.

Freshman Tracy Berlage also has a solution to the problem: "If you go to the Olive Garden in the late afternoon before dinner, you can order breadsticks. If you don't order anything else, they only cost fifteen cents each!"

A NEW BEGINNING

When we leave campus this year, we'll feel the difference. We've made new friends, learned new things, captured new dreams. As seniors leave to go out into their own world, many goals and expectations will come to life. May your memories of FSC enlighten you as you create your own Renaissance.
